Growing Pains: Self-healing of an EDS1-mediated defense response in Arabidopsis. Arabidopsis thaliana uses a two-tiered approach to protect itself from virulent and avirulent pathogens. Firstly, a primary immune response involving salicylic acid (SA) triggers a partial resistance to bacterial and fungal pathogens. In contrast, a secondary immune response, triggered by the octadecanoid pathway, results in a new and enhanced resistance to these pathogens and is SA independent. Here we show that expression of a primary defense gene, EDS1, confers not only a stronger resistance to fungal pathogens but also offers protection against a previously non-susceptible herbivore. This self-healing response contrasts with many plant diseases, in which pathogens cause damage and/or control gene expression and the plant must adapt to this new pathogenic situation.

Q: Is there a word for not having a fixed pronunciation? I'm not sure if this exists in any language or not, but I am wondering if there's a word for not having a fixed pronunciation. I think it may be called a "Hibernate" or "Pretend" personality or some kind of alignment. In some cases, you may want your pronunciation to be consistent, but many times you will need to use it in context. The context
